His mother, Mary Small, had an illegitimate son three years before Stephen, and John Kingshott was the father. This is recorded on John's marriage certificate. John Kingshott later married Mary Small, and Stephen's birth came between the two.

 The Sydney Morning Herald - Wednesday 15th June 1859

A REWARD will be given to any person, within the next month, who can or will furnish the undersigned of the whereabouts of his wife and family-, viz. .-Mrs. Mary Small and her five children ; William, 15 years of age ; John, 12 years ; Archibald, 9 years ; James, 6 years ; Emma, 3 years 6 months. As the whole family left their homes without just provocation, the undersigned informs them and all concerned that at the expiration of one month from this date, should they not return to their homes, or inform of their whereabouts, they will not, under nny circumstances, be recognised or owned by STEPHEN SMALL. Berrima. Juno 9. PS: If they return at once all will be well and means will be provided for their expenses should they require it. SS leaves Sydney for Berrima 13th instant. Stephen Small and Mary Elizabeth Philpott were married on 17 Oct 1841 in Kensington,

London, England.¹³⁻¹⁴

Mary Elizabeth Philpott was born about 1813 in Hawkhurst, Kent, England.¹⁵⁻²⁵ The ship's emigration records state that she was born in Hawkhurst, Kent, daughter of Jordan and Mary Thompson. Perhaps illegitimate daughter of Mary Philpott who never married father Jordan Thompson? Interestingly, she goes on to have an illegitimate son, also called Jordan, which adds credence to this hypothesis. In any case, no baptism entry has been found. On 8 Apr 1849 she arrived at in New South Wales, Australia.²⁶ She immigrated on 13 Apr 1849 to Arrived in Australia on board the "Midlothian". On 13 Apr 1849 Mary arrived at in New South Wales, Australia.²⁷ She died on 25 May 1908 at the age of 95 in Governors Bay, Canterbury, New Zealand.²⁸⁻³¹ She was buried in St Cuthbert's Cemetery, Governor's Bay, Christchurch, New Zealand.³² Mary is not the same person as Mary Elizabeth Philpot, born 4 Jan 1815 and baptised at Rochester, Kent, on 12 Feb 1815. I have a copy of a book, called "The Runaway Settlers", by Elsie Locke, which is a romanticised account of Mary's flight from her husband, and her subsequent settling in New Zealand.

Mary Elizabeth Philpott, the daughter of a gardener, was born in Hawkhurst, Kent, England, probably in 1812 or 1813. She married Stephen Small on 17 October 1841 in London, and about 1849, with her husband and three children, William, Mary Ann and John, emigrated to New South Wales, Australia. Three more children, Archibald, James and Emma, were born in the Berrima district. Stephen Small treated his family badly. While he was away droving, Mary Elizabeth Small took her children to Sydney and obtained a passage to New Zealand on the Armenian, chartered by John Cracroft Wilson. The elder daughter, Mary Ann, was left to follow later. The family arrived in Lyttelton on 7 April 1859.

To avoid detection by her husband Mary Elizabeth Small assumed the name of Phipps. Work was offered on Wilson's Cashmere run, but conditions were unsatisfactory and the family trekked across the Port Hills to an abandoned cob cottage at Governors Bay. At first they had to live off the land; but by good fortune the soil was perfectly suited to horticulture, and vegetables carried to Lyttelton by the boys found a ready market. Berry bushes and fruit trees were planted next.

While neighbouring settlers were attempting to grow wheat and barley, Mary Elizabeth Small began grazing cattle on the nearby tussock slopes. During the Westland goldrushes some of these cattle were stolen, whereupon she decided to profit from the lucrative goldfields market. In 1864, with her 15-year-old son, Archie, she successfully drove a herd over the Harper Pass.

In 1867, when the eldest son, William, was due to be married, the family resumed the name of Small, although the orchard and garden continued to be associated with the name Phipps. Communications with Lyttelton improved markedly after 1875 when the bridge track was replaced by a road suitable for coaches. Later, steam launches began running regular trips and holiday excursions. The growing popularity of Governors Bay as a holiday resort made it possible to sell produce direct from the orchard and garden which were handy to both road and jetty.

By 1870 Mary Elizabeth Small was able to buy her cob cottage, and in 1876 nearly an acre of the land was bought in the name of Archibald Small. This was subdivided; James Small built himself a substantial cottage of cob on one side of the short road leading to the beach, and some time later a good house of totara and matai was built for his mother on the other side. The latter property was in the name of Mary Elizabeth Small's daughter, Mary Ann Small, perhaps to ensure that Stephen Small could not claim it; however, he did not come to New Zealand.

Mary Elizabeth Small lived to the age of 95; she died at Governors Bay on 23 May 1908 and was buried in the churchyard of St Cuthbert's. She was remembered by her grandchildren as a small woman with curly auburn hair, fond of trinkets and lace. She was much given to singing old ballads as she went about the house, and had a sympathetic nature and a wealth of commonsense expressions. In times when a lone woman with dependent children had to find her own way in the world, she stood out for her courage, determination and clear-sighted enterprise.

ACCIDENTS AND FATALITIES.

INQUEST.
An inquest was held at the Magistrate's residence on the body of William George Manson, who met his death while out rabbit shooting on Dec 26. Mr R. Boulton was coroner, and Mr Robert Cooper foreman of the jury. The evidence of C. L. Pym, a lad of fourteen years, was to the effect that he and deceased, whose age was fifteen years and nine months, went out rabbit shooting on Dec 26. They were coming home, and when near what is known as the High Bush Grove a rabbit got up. Manson, who was in front of Pym, fired and missed the rabbit, and then without knowing the rabbit had died. Manson was then about five yards in front of him, and in a slight hollow. Deceased fell immediately without firing, and three witness saw blood flowing from his head. Witness made a hasty inspection of his marks, and saw that he had a ugly wound in the head, and that he was breathing heavily. Witness tried to stop the bleeding, but finding that this was impossible he carried Manson over and went to take the news to the parents. He had to walk about ten miles. Hugh Manson, father of the deceased, told that he accompanied Pym to the spot, and found his son dead. He went home and instantaneously he found a large piece of deceased's skull a few yards from where the body was lying. The boys had known each other from their infancy, and he had no reason to suppose that the latter had been due to anything but pure accident. A verdict that deceased was accidentally shot was returned.
